

Evening Guys

It has been a while since my last update and I wanted to share some of the work that has been taking place since.

Platforms

Much of the work around the ICO, EXCHANGE AND BBCL.IO is finished. We expect to make updates as volume increases and we get feedback from our users. We have added some content to www.bbcl.io namely FAQ section, there will be a blog section added as well as some back office elements.

Last week we released our first press release in relation to spire bank our team, namely Kristian has been doing a great job processing the data from the first release and preparing further content which we will distribute next week in our second release.

Marketing

Following reviews from the first release and feedback from our community, our marketing is expected to ramp up next week. We will be focusing now moving forward on the exchange and driving traffic and volume to the exchange.

Next week the OTC wallets and bbcl.io commercial funding wallets will be engaged with the exchange as we begin to process loan applications.

Commercial Lending

Tomorrow we will be processing our first loan application. I will be posting details of the project once its successfully completed.

Moving Forward, we are working to drive volume and new users to all our platforms
